LOW TEMPERATURES PREVAILING IN WEST—TO ADVANCE AS FAR AS ATLANTIC.

EXPECT ZERO WEATHER

Janesville Survives Eighteen Hours' Snow Storm, Experiencing Little Inconvenience.

Eighteen hours of snow and wind enveloped Janesville in the storm region Friday, but today dawned clear and bright with the temperature registered at 10 degrees above zero. Aside from slight delays in the arrival of trains last night and a temporary tie-up of the street car traffic, the city experienced little inconvenience. Day crowds thrived on the temporary snow and the downtown streets were far from deserted even at a late hour. Snow plows were put at work by the railroad companies and by the city. A large force of men was employed at the railroad and depot yards to clear away the heavy fall of snow. The street cars were running on regular schedules although the wind raised drifts in the tracks which had to be cleared away by repeated trips of the snow plow.

With the wind shifting to a brisk gale from the northwest, the cold temperatures ranging from 4 to 20 degrees below zero are reported, is expected to arrive here tonight or Sunday.

Covis Wide Area.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Cold weather sweeping eastward spread its frosty blanket over the Ohio valley and upper lake region today with promise of bringing the lowest temperatures of the year. Storm warnings ordered up all along the Atlantic coast from Delaware breakwaters to Cape Cod, heralded the cold wave which will reach the coast today.

Atlantic coast district, and the lower lake region by tonight and will remain over Sunday.

Zero temperatures throughout the Missouri valley and the plains states being pushed along eastward are expected to make it very cold and clear for the next two or three days, except in the lower lake region and north by New England, where clouds were expected. Generally fair weather was predicted elsewhere.

The weather bureau's little white flag with the black square in the center was fluttering from all the stations in the east today.

State Storm-Swept.

Milwaukee, Feb. 7.—The first real blizzard of the winter in Milwaukee and vicinity hit the city at eight o'clock this morning registered 12 above zero. The storm was general throughout the state. With the absence of wind and the snow being of the light variety, telegraph and telephone companies experienced little or no trouble. Snow plows operated throughout the night kept traction lines about on time.

Aids Lumbering Business.

Chippewa Falls, Feb. 7.—A day of heavy snow fall has brought joy to business in general in that section of the state and especially to those people who engage in the lumber industry.

The loggers have been able to cut their timber and pile it in the snow, and the lack of snow in the section of the state for them to load their timber. The result is that the managers of the logging camps have been forced to expend thousands of dollars more than they expected to expend. The present snow, however, will result in a large saving of money in the lumbering business for many years.

ATTORNEY MAKES FINAL
EFFORT TO SAVE MEN FROM LONG PRISON TERM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Feb. 7.—The final effort to save from imprisonment twenty-four of the labor union officials, convicted in the Indianapolis dynamite trials and refused new trials by the United States Court of Appeals in Chicago, was made today before the United States Supreme Court today by Attorney E. N. Zolline. Six of the defendants were granted new trials by the decision handed down in Chicago. Zolline argued today that the legal rights of the defendants were as much as all the defendants were in the same conspiracy to transport dynamite, all should have been granted new trials, instead of only six. Other points in his argument were that the defendants were doubly punished—once for conspiracy to transport dynamite and again for actual transportation of the explosive.

That Ortie, McManis and Edward Clark, have pleaded guilty to a felony, have been incompetent witnesses, and should have been tried separately. That the offenses charged were barred by the statute of limitations at the time of the indictments, and that no federal offenses were proven. The twenty-four defendants for whom Zolline is seeking new trials, are at liberty under bail, the Court of Appeals having granted a stay of execution, pending final disposition of their cases by the Supreme Court.

Chicago Youth Captured With Eight Trunks and Ten Suit Cases Full of Stolen Goods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Becoming a thief so that his wife could dress in silk and satin and live like a woman of wealth Peter Hengstler, aged twenty years, came to grief in municipal court today, where he was committed to the Green Bay reformatory for three years, six months.

The sentence was imposed after the prisoner had confessed to the theft of eight trunks and ten suit cases from the baggage room of the Union depot, the receptacles containing loot which was valued at $3,000. Six trunks and a part of their contents were recovered by police and road detectives.

Born near Gilbert Junction, Wisconsin, the son of a farmer, Hengstler came to the city where he had been years of age with little knowledge of city life, and three years later was married.

Hengstler according to his own statement was not in a position to provide the life his wife craved and could not dress her in the fashionable clothes which she admired. He therefore sought the solution of his wage problem by becoming a thief.

Hengstler drove an express wagon and through his knowledge of baggage business was able to clandestinely remove the trunks. The thefts were committed in 1911 and a year later according to Hengstler's testimony, his wife fled to Milwaukee with an affinity.

British steamer Expected To Be Undamaged When Dislodged at High Tide.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Manassquan, N. J., Feb. 7.—Off her course in a fog the British tramp steamer Queen Louise went aground early today about a quarter of a mile off shore here and prospects were that she would remain fast until high tide late this afternoon when she probably will be floated undamaged.

A heavy sea which had battered the vessel, subsided, and life-savers went to her aid and her position was not dangerous. As a precaution the Manassquan life-savers shot a breeches-buoy line aboard and two boys of the vessel were brought ashore. The others in the crew numbering about twenty, including the captain, David McDonough, remained aboard.

Young Girl at Newark, N. J., Takes Poison and Dies as Climax of Domestic Tragedy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Newark, N. J., Feb. 7.—Hazel Herdman, a girl of 24, infatuated with Charles P. Manning, shot and killed Mrs. Harriet Manning in her home here last night. This was the announcement made by the Newark police this afternoon.

The girl was lying in the Mountain-side hospital at Mount Claire, New Jersey, of poison taken with suicidal intent.

Learning that the young woman had been taken to the institution in an automobile the police seized upon it as a clue to the mysterious shooting of Mrs. Manning, and accosting Miss Herman accused her of the crime.

Then according to police, she confessed saying she was in love with Manning and had killed his wife because she had failed to get a divorce as promised.

Miss Herman was the unnamed woman detained by the police and released this morning. She was released this morning.

Miss Herdman died at ten minutes after 3 o'clock. Her mother was at her bedside.

INDIANS TO PROTEST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Pine Ridge Agency, S. D., Feb. 7.—The Sioux Indians are today making plans to send a delegation to Washington to protest against the reenactment of the battle of Wounded Knee to be filmed in the government archives as an authentic production. The Indians are enraged at the film people, whom they claim distorted the action of the battle to belittle the prowess of the Redskins.

Several instances are pointed out wherein the picture is distorted. They claim that General Nelson A. Miles, who took of the prominent part in the film, was in reality fifty miles from the scene of the battle and so far as is known was never on the field, until he posed for the movies. They also claim that Buffalo Bill who played the part of the hero, called a meeting of the grand council of the tribe to protest against the picture going down in history as authentic. They claim they were misled into believing it was only a sham battle, and did not know it was to be called Wounded Knee. The formal protest will be carried to Washington by three chiefs.

ADVOCATES DRESS REFORM FOR COMFORT OF WOMAN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 7.—"By formulating her own philosophy on the subject of dress and adhering to it, a woman will save herself much worry, will please her friends and will find a fitting, into fashion, which will make her absurdly conspicuous," said Miss Clara Eckhardt of the Wisconsin university home economics department.

She ranked of first importance the selection of material and the consideration of health and suitability to the occupation of the wearer.

Another point which she emphasized as indicating the wisdom of the wearer is good fit. This she said, meant clothing that conforms to the shape of the body with that degree of looseness which means comfort and still secures neatness of appearance.

"By her type of outer dress," said Miss Eckhardt, "a woman expresses her own individuality to all whom she meets. The intelligent and truly economical woman has a well thought out plan of outer dress, choosing the different parts of her costume because of their harmony and charm of color, and modified conformity to fashion."

TO COLLECT TAXES

John D. Rockefeller Will Have to List Personal Property Today or Action Will Be Taken.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 7.—With John D. Rockefeller in New York, where he went from here yesterday afternoon, Deputy State Tax Commissioners John D. Fackler and William Agnew said today they would take no action to collect the $900,000,000 personal property tax levied by the county duplicate here until Monday.

Time Expired. Today marks the expiration of the time provided by law for Rockefeller to voluntarily list his property here in compliance with the demand made by the tax officials upon him last Monday. Fackler and Agnew planned to place all the oil king's securities they can find on the duplicate.

Some Delay. The prospect of a legal fight over trying to make him pay taxes in this state is not expected to come until next December when the tax will be due for collection. Rockefeller's attorney, Virgil P. Kline, would make a client's departure or its connection with the tax matter.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Wireless calls were sputtering out from the big navy towers at Arlington today to the frozen waters of the Newfoundland coast searching for the heavy tug Potomac, lost in the ice after an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the cruise of the fishing schooners Hiram Lowell and Frances Willard.

The heavy ice packs in the Bay of Islands turned the sturdy Potomac back from her work of rescue after days of useless smashing at the frozen fields which hold the Lowell and the Willard prisoners; so she left the bay for North Sydney, Thursday night, and should have put into port yesterday. When the tug was not heard from today navy officers said there was no cause for alarm, but put the wireless feeling for her.

A Big Year
For Nationally
Advertised Goods

Mr. Merchant, this message is written after a careful and exhaustive study of trade conditions all over the country.

This is going to be a big year for standard goods of recognized quality because the manufacturers are going to push them than ever before.

Newspaper advertising in newspapers such as this will be largely used. And it is going to be pushed with the greatest vigor, and bring the best results in the places where the local merchants are ready to co-operate.

The manufacturers are willing to spend money to make a market at your doorstep, but they want you to let the people know that the goods can be had in your store.

When such a condition exists, the live merchant should not be afraid to do his share.

Let us suggest that you get in touch with the manufacturers whose lines you carry, and let them know just what you are prepared to do, in the way of co-operative work.

It will mean better business for both of you.

The Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, will be glad to answer any questions about co-operative work with dealers in newspaper advertising campaigns.

Booklet on request.

Accompanied by a friend young Malley was driving in Madison county when his car knocked down and severely injured John Mahoney, a pedestrian. The police say the young man did not stop his car, but increased its speed. Repeated shots fired at them failed to stop the car. Finally the police secured a motor car and after a chase of ten blocks captured Malley, who gave bail and will appear in police court today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 7.—Only one of the fifty-two convicts sent to the honor camp at Grand Detour, Illinois, to build a road, was false to the trust reposed in him. It was made known today when he was returned to the state penitentiary here. The man was caught smuggling a flask of whiskey into his tent. He was at once reported by his tent mate and sent back to the prison.

El. M. Allen, warden of the penitentiary, who had been in the camp was excellent, only the one man attempting to abuse his freedom and incidentally that they built an excellent stretch of road. The men are bronzed and cheerful, and having gained weight. Allen pointed out that the men were not a "hand pick" crew, but were taken at random, and included many men convicted of manslaughter and other desperate crimes.

HOPE TO ORGANIZE
PUBLIC SOCIAL CENTERS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 7.—Residents of the second ward were planning to meet tonight for another discussion of the establishment of a social center for their section of the city. The meeting was held at the second ward school building.

Sixty dollars has been subscribed for a photograph to be used in the school and social gatherings. Other furnishings will be added from time to time.

Much interest is being taken outside the city in the development of social centers at the rural schools. J. C. Galt, secretary of the Wisconsin Country Life conference, in a bulletin says that the first necessity is for every farm family to extend its personal acquaintance and connections from its own door yard out to every home in its neighborhood and then out to every home in its community.

"This," he declares, "must become a settled policy for social preservation, a social determination, a sort of semi-religious principle in a home neighborhood and community. In village and city, daily pressure brings contact. In the country rural procedure must take the place of pressure."

Entire City Threatened With Flames When Water Mains Freeze, Hampering Fire-fighters.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Banff, Alta., Feb. 7.—Fire today destroyed the King Edward hotel and a number of business buildings. The water mains were frozen up and the whole town was threatened for a time. Pipes were thawed out, however, and the situation was under control this afternoon.

A number of guests in the King Edward hotel were driven into the streets with the thermometer registering ten below zero. They were given shelter in private homes. Most of them escaped with their personal effects. It is not believed anyone was injured.

Firemen dynamited the Brewster department store and adjacent buildings when they could not get water with which to head off the flames. The dynamiting probably will double the loss by fire. No accurate estimate could be made today of the total losses.

Many of the firemen suffered acutely from exposure and a number had narrow escapes from falling walls. Many citizens assisted the firemen in their work.

New York Health Board Prevents Quack Doctors From Cheating People With Hopeless Cure.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Feb. 7.—The New York city department of health today issued a warning against quacks who might seek to take advantage of the popular interest aroused by experiments with radium in the treatment of cancer. In its report the department says:

"In view of the popular furore which the radium treatment of cancer has excited in this country, it seems advisable to issue a note of warning. According to the best authorities the radium treatment of cancer is as yet a matter of experiment and what successful results have been obtained concern chiefly the treatment of external cancers, particularly those of the skin. Even though radium may eventually prove of much greater value than has been the case in the past, it must not be overlooked that the first principle in cancer treatment is still early recognition and early thorough removal."

START CONSTRUCTION WORK ON COSTLY MINATURE OF GRAND CANYON FOR FAIR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Francisco, Feb. 7.—Work started today on the miniature of the Grand Canyon of Arizona which is to be one of the most expensive and attractive concessions of the Panama Pacific International Exposition. This concession, which is being constructed by the Santa Fe Railroad at a cost of exceeding $350,000, will be the exact replica of Nature's masterpiece.

While it will occupy only five and a half acres, scientific devices will show the canyon in its proper perspective and give the visitor a true conception of the great heights and distances. A trail of red sandstone from Winslow, Arizona, reaching the native stone of the canyon and large shipments of sage and cactus, from which the canyon will be built arrived several days ago.

Frank Moran, the American heavy-weight, seems to be quite a bit in Paris. Among all the white heavies that the French capital seems to be cluttered up with, Moran undoubtedly leads the list. He would never be very much of a bit personally in his native land, owing to his strutting manner and somewhat overblown ego. It is said by those who know him that he hates himself bitterly. But in Paris these traits win for him widespread admiration as the natives there consider them the equal-

WILL HOLD TOURNEY FOR LOCAL BOWLERS

Entry List Started for Single and Double Team Events Open to Janesville Bowlers.

Entry blanks have been issued for a bowling tournament, open only to Janesville men, which is to be held at Miller's alleys starting February sixteenth. Two events, single and double entries, are scheduled and it is expected over a hundred bowlers will compete in the city tourney.

In the individual events the fee is listed at fifty cents and a team in the double events will pay one dollar for entrance. This stake will be divided into suitable prizes and the starters of the city tourney aim to distribute the stakes so that a large number will share in the winnings. The schedule will start on the sixteenth and will continue through the week, if necessary. All entries must be in by the fifteenth.

STICKNEY IS STAR IN EDGERTON GAME; LOCALS WIN 31-28

Close Score Due to Small Floor. Tobacco Lads Are Whirlwinds. —Stewart Absent.

Janesville won their second game against Wisconsin high school quintets last evening at Edgerton, when they defeated the Tobacco City boys 31 to 28. Playing at a disadvantage in a small cooped-up playing space, Captain Hemming and his men were able to count in the pinches, and at the finish nosed out their opponents in a creditable manner.

Stewart's fractured nose kept him from entering the contest at forward, and Stickney had to be broken in at the team work. The latter played the game of his life, and to show he is always on the job, counted five times before the close of the contest. His speed is his great asset, and coupled with Captain Hemming's floor work and Dalton's shooting, won the game for Janesville.

Captain Hemming was not outplayed. He counted four times, holding his man to three baskets. McIntosh was Edgerton's dependable man, and much was expected of him. As far as floor work was concerned he delivered the goods.

Hemming handled the ball in a way at times that made McIntosh look like a beginner. McIntosh is to be credited for having the jump on Hemming. Only several times during the match did the local center reach the hemisphere before his rival.

Dalton did very satisfactory work at guard. He secured five baskets from the back position. His man, Sutton, was able to count five shots also during the contest. Dalton featured with his floor work. Many times he handled two forwards with ease, and kept them from scoring, when Rau could not get down the floor fast enough to cover his man. Rau played a steady game, holding Whittet to one lone shot. Dalton and Rau work well together, and should prove a big factor in the coming struggle with Madison.

Atwood, all state forward, had another off-night at Edgerton. He counted but once during the contest. As far as floor work is concerned, Atwood always shines, but his shooting is far from what it was last year. He has made but seven baskets in four games.

The game opened with a rush by Edgerton. Hemming secured a free throw when Johnson fouled. Sutton scored at close range, only to be followed by Stickney. Sutton and Dalton each counted. McIntosh took the lead on Hemming, and was followed by another of Stickney's shots. Stickney scored another. Rau was hurt. Janesville led at this point, 9 to 3. Sutton and Stickney scored and the half ended, the locals in the lead, the score standing 11 to 10.

Cent. Hemming lost confidence in the first half, but came back strong and scored all his four shots in the last half. He opened with a basket, followed by Whittet. Dalton started to score, and capped three in rapid succession. Janesville never failed to come back and at the close were heralded as the coming champs, the final score standing 31 to 28.

There is no doubt that Edgerton had the stiffest five which has opposed Janesville this season. Slough-ton was easy, the Alumni was handily disposed of, and the Freeporters took the game from the locals through buggery.

Janesville will have to improve their team work at least fifty per cent if they expect to win from Madison next Friday night on the local floor. Is the prediction of those few fans who saw the match last night.

The lineup and score of the game follows:

Janesville—Atwood, 1f.; Stickney, rf.; Capt. Hemming, c.; Rau, ls.; Dalton, rg.; Barnes, sub.

Edgerton—Whittet, lf.; Sutton, rf.; McIntosh, c.; Capt. Johnson, ls.; Brown, rg.

Baskets—Stickney, 5; Dalton, 5; Sutton, 5; Hemming, 4; McIntosh, 3; Johnson, 3; Atwood, 1; Whittet, 1.

Free throws—Hemming, 1; Sutton, 4.

Referee—Albright, Wisconsin.

Timekeeper—Ferguson, Janesville.

Scorer—Barnes, Janesville.

Time of halves—20 minutes.

Attendance—350.

The feature act of the evening occurred when Janesville trotted out on the floor, with little "Shrimp" Kennedy following them in uniform. The midget scored basket after basket in practice and looked like a real star. Several university men present at the game were interested to know if this youngster was a regular man. They were answered that he was, but was not needed in last night's game, and would be saved until the big game with Madison next week.

The referee was impartial at all stages, but showed a lack of knowledge of knowing the rules. There was no fault to find with his decisions, which all looked reasonable.

POSTPONE CONTEST WITH RACINE TEAM

Moose Polo Five Will Play Three Game Schedule With Racine and Kenosha at Latter Date.

The three games of the Moose roller polo team of this city and the Racine and Kenosha aggregations, which was to have been played tonight and Sunday, have been postponed for two weeks, as the Auditorium at Racine has been engaged during the playing dates for an association convention.

It was planned to meet Riechert's All Stars at Racine tonight, the Kenosha team tomorrow afternoon, and the Racine team again on Sunday night. The Moose five are disappointed in not being able to make the trip, as they were in excellent trim to give the haughty Racine team, lead by Fritz Reichert, a trimming. Last week the Racine five defeated an Iowa state team three straight games, and have scheduled contests with strong Indiana fives.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair and cold.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

It was Sunday in the big hotel. It was cheerful and warm enough within; but out in the street the snow was coming in gusts from the Northwest, the home and birthplace of the blizzard, before it starts on its mad career of destruction.

The door swung open, and a midge of a newsboy stepped inside, covered with snow from head to foot. His face was very red, and the one ear his scant cap refused to cover looked nearly frozen. He hesitated but a few seconds to get his bearings; then, as the gruff hardware man was nearest, he made straight for him.

"News?" he said, in a thin, piping voice; but the man with the iron face scribbled away unnoticing. "News?" again with a hesitating step forward.

This time the man looked up with his customary scowl and a "What's that?" loud enough to be heard on the second floor.

The boy said nothing; but pulled a mittenless, red, beamed hand out of his pocket and clumsily picked out a paper and held it toward him.

Then the hardware man straightened up and looked the boy up and down, and without noticing the extended paper, said, "Where's your other mitten?"

"What are you saying such a hat as that for? You'll freeze your ears."

The boy was evidently bored. He shifted his feet a little and said, "It's all I've got. News?"

"And your shoes—look at 'em! Why you haven't any overshoes on," he fairly roared, "and no overcoat to speak of. Say, what are you out selling papers for a day like this?"

"Got to," said the boy bashfully, and then with an effort added, "Ain't got much coal."

The oil man had walked softly up; the little dude from Indianapolis had followed; Jake the clothing man had shown interest; and the groceryman had moved his chair over and sat down near them to listen.

Then the clerk noticed the boy for the first time and sang out, "Boy, boy! better move on!" and the boy started.

The hardware man with his feet in a minute, and with a heavy hand on the boy's shoulder he roared at the clerk, "Hold on there! This boy don't move on until I get ready. How many papers have you, Sonny?"

"Ten," he said. "we'll buy him out, and nothing less than ten cents goes."

He took the papers from the boy's arm and handed them round, and ten men paid ten cents apiece for them.

"Boys," said he again, "think of a little fellow like him out such a day as this half dressed!"

Then a man spoke up. "Perhaps some of us have some samples we could spare. Here are some overshoes that I think will just fit him," and he stooped down and put the boy's feet into them.

Jake said not a word, but went to one of his many trunks marked "Youths," and brought out an overcoat that just fitted.

A man who sold caps and gloves was the next contributor.

The little fellow from Indianapolis seemed to think it was up to him. He sold white goods. Perhaps there was not much he could do. He turned away wiping his eyes suspiciously, opened a long case behind the clerk's desk, and brought out a white silk muffler and tied it round the boy's neck.

The groceryman had nothing but some candy; but he added a half-dollar to it.

The hardware man covered the front of the boy with his portly form and put something into his hand, no one knew what, and said in a husky voice, "Run along now, Sonny. You've had a good day's business."

The boy stood a moment in the doorway, facing the crowd of traveling men. He tried to speak, but in vain. Then with a profound bow he passed out into the street and the storm, and the voice of the man who wore the pitcher and torch badge of Gideon fell like a benediction:

"And a little child shall lead them!"

This pathetic little story won a prize in the Record Herald contest, and appeared in the magazine section of that paper, not long ago. It is a human interest story from real life, and it throbs with fine sentiment because of the heart-action involved.

The street waif and the "newsy" are so closely allied, in all large cities, that the two characters are almost inseparable. The little capital required, and the occupation furnished, prevents many a homeless lad from becoming a vagabond, and while the school hard knocks may not be very promising, it turns out some good men.

The hero of this little story was fortunate in falling into the hands of the biggest hearted class of men on earth, and only a word was necessary to touch the heart strings and the purse strings, and the response was generous.

The boy was no worse off than many others on the street that cold winter night, but luck, or providence, which is a better word, directed him into the hotel lobby, where he found a sympathetic audience.

The time was propitious, for if there is any time during the week when the traveling man is lonesome, it is on Sunday evening, when visions of home and the wife and children come to him and he longs to be with them.

The waif from the street was somebody's boy, and his forlorn condition appealed to the little group of men from the road, and they were quick to respond.

Society looks askance at the fraternity of traveling men who swarm over the country like bees, touching every nook and corner of the land. They are birds of passage, to such large extent that many of them are ostracized from society, and they are away from home so much that they can scarcely claim citizenship in their home town.

There was a time when the notion prevailed that any kind of a man could sell goods on the road, and during this era the fraternity was in bad repute, because so many worthless men were employed. Many of the men were hale fellows well met, whose expense account sometimes exceeded their sales.

But all this is of the past. The men on the road today are selected because they are salesmen, and because they are mentally and morally strong enough to meet the demands of life away from home.

They are filling the most important mission of any class of men in commercial and industrial life, because they are creators of business. It requires skill and expert knowledge to manufacture goods, and capital, and the ability to handle it, is necessary to finance and develop an industry, but tact and the ability to handle men, and the outside of the counter is demanded to dispose of the product.

This traveling man, who is a salesman, possesses, in rare degree, and when he fails to possess it, he soon finds himself looking for another job.

The United States Steel company, just now being investigated by the government, charged with being an unrighteous monopoly, in restraint of trade, has done more to extend American trade by educating salesmen, than all other forces combined.

For many years American salesmen in the old world were a failure, because they attempted to force on the people the goods they had to sell, rather than the goods they wanted to buy.

The Chinese people were friendly but they demanded goods adapted to their trade, and we refused to meet the demand, claiming that our goods were superior. These conditions prevailed in almost every other nation.

The Steel company was quick to recognize the situation, and half a dozen years ago they scattered over the old world a little army of bright young men to study the people and their customs, with a view to giving them what they wanted in the way of manufactured goods. Other lines followed suit, and our foreign trade has advanced by leaps and bounds.

The American salesman in England today, is never in a hurry to catch a train. He has all the time there is to drink tea and comply with the customs demanded before discussing business.

One of the big shoe factories in Chicago has one hundred and ten men on the road. They are the creators of a business which runs into the millions, and regarded as the most valuable asset.

The house has learned by experience that it takes a southern man to sell a southerner goods, because the northern man is too impulsive, and in too much of a hurry.

The traveling man is in a class by himself. His knowledge of men, and his ability to handle them, is his stock in trade. He is generous to a fault, as the little newsboy discovered in the hotel lobby.

MOULDERS' STRIKE RESULTS IN CLOSING OF STEEL SHOP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Following a strike of 200 moulders at the plant of the Gould Coupler Company here, to enforce their demand for a closed shop it was announced by the general manager today that the malleable and steel department would be closed indefinitely. About 1800 men are affected by the lockout. No question of wages is involved.

SUFFRAGETTE ARSON SQUAD STILL BUSY WITH TORCHES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Inverness, Scotland, Feb. 7.—An arson squad of militant suffragettes today set fire to Hazelbank House, a highland residence in Tormahinch, 16 miles from here. The house, which was destroyed, belonged to the widow of a county councillor and was temporarily unoccupied.

KATHLYN

Tonight, at about ten o'clock, will be your last opportunity to see the second installment of "The Adventures of Kathlyn," running at both the Lyric and Majestic Theaters. Today's program is shortened, being slightly less than an hour in length; this allows more people to see the "Kathlyn" picture.

Tomorrow's program includes two special features: "Too Late," a two-reel Selig, and "Who was Guilty?", a two-reel Kleine-Gines. Also a Kalem and a Lubin. The admission, as always on Sundays, is a dime.

The "Kathlyn" pictures, you know, will be continued every second Saturday.

The Chicago Tribune is running the story of one photograph every morning. All these pictures can be seen here about two weeks later.

On the Spur of the Moment

Heard on the Keresene Route. "I don't believe you understand music at all. Do you know what a scale is?"

"Sure, what is it?" "A scale is a feather on a fish."

"I know one suffragette's husband who hasn't spoken to his wife in nineteen years."

"Why?" "He hasn't had the heart to interrupt her."

"I've got a friend who is a diplomat."

"What is a diplomat?" "A diplomat is a man who can steal your hat and coat and explain it so nicely that you give him your watch and chain."

"Santa Fe Charlie was buried today."

"What is Charlie dead?" "Yes; that's the reason they buried him."

"What did he die of?" "Five aces."

"Silverstein's mother-in-law died the other day and just before she died she said: 'Goodbye, Silverstein, I'll meet you in heaven.'"

"Oh; is that so? What did Silverstein say?" "He didn't say nothing, but the next day he started to eat pork."

The Bridge Club. There cannot be much fun in it. They just sit there and scowl. When some one trumps her partner's ace there is an awful howl. They sit and nag and scold and scrap over every card that's played. And criticize each other's clothes; also the way they're made.

They sit and play four hours or more, no love shows in their eyes. They're fighting for a 10-cent dish, for that's the big first prize. Each one slams down her card quite hard enough to break her wrist. There's no love lost, I'll tell you that, when women folks play whist.

Uncle Abner. There may be some fellows who never wanted to play in the land, but if so, they have never been discovered.

When a fellow gets enough nerve to wear a silk hat down the main street of the old home town he will never be stopped in anything that he sets out to do.

So far as I am concerned, I would rather have a good house and lot than an automobile, but I am some old-fashioned.

It is gradually getting so it ain't no sure sign of the millennium to see a preacher smokin' a cigar or going to a circus.

The Test. We've surely praised the policies of Wilson in a manner that has been enthusiastic.

The income-tax and tariff we have swallowed. From the administration Democratic.

But we are still withholding judgment. There's one thing more that's got to fill our needs. We're waiting very anxiously for springtime. To try the Democratic garden seeds.

Things to Think About. Horseradish goes very good on boiled beef, but is seldom eaten on cantaloupe or watermelon.

A great mustard plaster placed on the chest early in the fall will remain all winter, if desired.

Many a $25 story has cost the author $24.98 in postage stamps before he finally landed it, so young, and aspiring authors should not be discouraged.

The claw end of a hammer makes an excellent substitute for a clock key. It is a mistake to use a hammer for any other purpose in some households.

Signs of Spring. Asparagus is on the market. But take this timely hunch. Don't hanker for it yet awhile. It costs one buck per bunch.

Home Cooking. My maw she cooked no tabble dotes or ally carters or such. And when it came to throwin' style, she wasn't very much.

There wasn't no French names hooked onto vittles she would cook. She got 'em from experience, not from a furrin' book.

She didn't have no casseroles like they have now in grubs. Or other high-toned rig-ma-jigs and she put on no frills.

She had an old-time cook stove and some kitties, that was all. But she could cook the biscuits, that, by jing, would never fail.

Her pie crust, gosh, 'twould simply melt right on a feller's mouth. Her Johnny cake seemed like it came right from the sunny south.

Her crullers made a feller sit right up and call for more.

Her bread was one thing upon which she set a lot of store.

No, friends, she wasn't very long on what they now call style. But she could surely cook the stuff that made a feller smile.

There wasn't no dyspepsy round our place, or gouty feet.

For she cooked up the kind of food that's really meant to eat.

According to Uncle Abner. There may be a lot of satisfaction in being poor, but nobody sees it in this light except those who have got money.

Elmer Jones has invented an undershirt that can't bunch up around the waist in hot weather, and expects to sell a lot of 'em if he kin find any people who don't wear union suits.

The trouble with most of Elmer's inventions is that they come about forty years late.

If all of the bald spots were the same size and shape it would add considerable to the monotony of this life.

Hank Tummas says "East Lynne" was the best opy he ever saw. I guess it must have been the only one. If some feller could invent a fountain pen that would get the ink on the paper, instead of on the fingers, he would make a fortune that would put John O. Olyfeller in the shade.

Hod Spink takes the butter down to his office every day and keeps it in his safe. It doesn't matter where he keeps his money, for he hasn't got any.

There doesn't seem to be anything on this earth that will cure a man of the derby hat habit.

Hank Tummas says his hat is in the ring and he is a "receptive" candidate for town constable, which means that he will be glad to receive the nomination if there is any possible way, by hook or crook, to get it.

Comparatively Good Record. Last year there were only 23 murders committed in the city of London.

Starting on Road to Success.

If you are to be successful you must ever keep in mind that your employer will have a much higher value of your services if he knows that you are observing what is going on around you and the work of your immediate superior. It is observing the small as well as the great things in business that counts. Attention, an intelligent imagination as well as observation, and you are on the high road to success.

May End Letter Writing.

A French inventor is said to have perfected a device that threatens to do away with necessity for writing letters. One talks into a machine, which makes a cloth record that can be transmitted to the person with whom it is desired to communicate, and all he has to do is to set his phonograph going and listen. Hereafter, young ladies in the business of stenography and typewriting who receive offers of marriage from eligible young men may feel it the part of prudence to accept.

IF MEALS SOUR AND TURN INTO GAS, TAKE SODA

When everything we eat turns to gas and we eructate sour food and acid fluids it means there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach, says a noted authority. This irritating acid retards the process of digestion and promotes food fermentations. Our meals sour in the stomach like carbonic acid in a can, forming gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon, causing a heavy lumpy misery in the chest, constant belching of gas, sour risings or heartburn, fullness and often nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get good pharmacy a package of 10 grain Soda-gel tablets and take one tablet after each meal followed by a tumbler of water which will instantly neutralize acidity, stop food fermentation, absorb the gases and sweeten the entire digestive system.

Further studies that those troubled with chronic acidity should take one tablet after each meal after meals for awhile, as this simple antacid is entirely harmless, being composed of Soda, Magnesia and Calcium Carbonate U. S. P.

Eugenic Facts to Consider When Girl Is Asked to Wed

(Editor's Note—Albert E. Wiggam, the well-known journalist and lecturer, has written a series of articles for the Gazette on the general subject of eugenics. Mr. Wiggam has studied the subject many years and is regarded as an authority, although many scientists differ with him on important points.)

By Albert E. Wiggam.

When a girl is asked to marry, all the unborn children of the future are waiting for her answer. Will she bring together two blood lines of virtue and glory? Or will her answer join two streams of heredity that will make it absolutely certain that the lives of the children will be one long struggle with weakness, disease, racked nerves, vacillating tempers, poverty of talents, misery and sin? Poor, poor thing! She doesn't know how to answer. But oh! how the new science of heredity could help her! For at the very least science knows now how to prevent unions that can result in absolutely nothing but children whose life is a tragedy and whose death a blessing. Let us study the family affairs of our little friends, the guinea pigs. Above two families belong to Professor Castle of Harvard and were given to the writer by the eugenics record office at Cold Springs Harbor, New York. Everybody should write to them to learn about the new wonders of heredity.

At the head the mother guinea pig has hair that is black and smooth. The father below her has hair that is white and rough. But note the children. Neither child is like either parent. The upper one has the black hair of the mother and the rough hair of the father. The lower one the white hair of the father and the shown that all mental and physical human characters do follow the same law as the color in guinea pigs. They are due to the same set of causes. So when all the factors are known the offspring can be predicted with equal ease and certainty.

The family of guinea pigs at the right merely add a third quality. In the standard of the problem of the types of children. In this family shortness, smoothness and blackness of hair is mated with longness, roughness and whiteness. Professor Castle bred six different kinds of offspring, not a one precisely like either parent. Many people say, "I don't believe in heredity. Look at all those children as different as night and day, and not a one like the parents." Why that is one of our chief proofs of heredity. They all have under the same environment. But the heredity elements are mixed in each in different proportions. However, if some human quality like music or red hair was possessed by neither parent and none of their ancestors had it, none of the children will ever have it.

Families free from insanity, epilepsy and imbecility can marry into similar families with an absolute certainty that they will never have insane, epileptic or feeble-minded children. Wherever possible mate strength with virtue, and prevent persons with the same weakness from marrying each other—these are the two chief rules of the science of eugenics.

Cat the Cause of Panic.

The lights went out while most people were at their evening meal at Calcutta, India, the other day. Nervous people feared it was the work of Bengal terrorists and looked about for weapons. In a little while the lights came on again. The incident was due to a cat, which jumped on a transformer at the electric station, making a short circuit. The cat was electrocuted.

RUSK TIGERS WIN FROM FORUM FIVE

Have Little Difficulty in Disposing of Forumites.—Final Score is 30 to 17.

The Rusk Tigers, a five picked from the Rusk Lyceum Literary society, were victors over the Forum regulars in the high school gymnasium yesterday afternoon at the close of school, the final score being 30 to 17.

The first half ended with the Tigers leading by three points. The Forum society representatives attempted several times to take the lead, but were unsuccessful. Harry Williams starred for the Tigers, with five baskets. Jones and Beard for the Forum counted three times. The stellar work was done by Kober, the midget Forum forward. Although he scored but twice, he excelled on floor work. The lineup for the game follows:

Rusk Tigers—Williams, lt.; Hayes, rf.; Richards, c.; Heath, lg.; Dearborn, rg.; Kennedy, sub.
Forumites—Jones, lt.; Kober, rf.; Mouay, c.; Fuchs, lg.; Beard, rg. Referee—Curtis.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted)
Some seven or eight years ago a light complexioned, slim built young man was bell boy at the Hotel Myers for some time and before that he was peddling Chicago papers and the Gazette on the streets in Janesville for a number of years.

This boy was always attending to business, whether on the street or in the hotel. He never smoked or drank and always took good care that his small earnings went home to the family. It was something like eight years ago, I think, that he tried of this and left Janesville and joined the Buffalo Bill Show. His name is Fred Collier, and one of his boyhood friends, John Connolly of this city, received a letter from him last week, and in fact, he is now assistant to the manager of the show, and in the winter time they showed in the large theatres.

Rhoda Royal's indoor circus, savoring of the good old summer time and the savdust rings, proved a vaudeville performance that was unique to a degree at the Odeon Theatre, Des Moines, Iowa, last Thursday night. The audience was of very fair sized proportions, and was pleased immensely.

The program includes the usual circus stunts of the rings, with trained horses featured. The horses are equal to any circus ring stock, and in fact, are circus horses which perform each summer with the Sells-Floto show. Performing ponies, dogs and monkeys also add to the variety of the program. An exhibition of rope spinning and juggling, by "Freddie" Collier, late of the Buffalo Bill Show, is very clever.

An exhibition of cowboy, Indian and Cossack rough riding and broncho busting is shown to advantage. Mrs. Royal introduced her bridleless high school mare Nellie in a series of stunts, and other equine features were the tango horse, Mlle. Alvina displayed to advantage, Bismarck, a beautiful cream-white horse, in statue pose. A trick donkey and a kicking mule which "any member of the audience" is privileged to ride if he can, were also shown.

Young Collier, used the same good judgment in show business that he did in selling his papers and acting as bell boy in the hotel. He was always attending to business, and he is now a successful showman. Today he is reaping his reward, for he is one of the high salaried men around the show and one that the management is proud of. He has been with Mr. Royal between four and five years, and when Mr. Royal is called away from the show for a few days he knows that Fred Collier will look after the business the same as though he were there himself.

Of all the busy places in the country about this time of year is the headquarters or winter quarters of the big shows, for some time next month most of the big shows will make their bow to the public for 1914 at the Barnum Show, Madison Square Garden, the Ringlings at the Coliseum in Chicago, the Gollmars at the Amphitheatre in Milwaukee and the Sells-Floto and Buffalo Bill in Mexico.

Following from New York, they will give you something of an idea of the loyalty of the Wisconsin showmen to their country when it comes to refitting the shows for the coming season:

AMUSEMENTS

WELSH CHORUS COMING.

Wales has long been famed as a land of singers, for all who live in its mountains seem to possess voices of rare beauty. As an example of this gift, there is no organization that can equal the Gwent Welsh Male Singers, who give their first concert in Janesville on Monday evening. It is really an outgrowth of the normal love of the people of Mommouthshire, South Wales, to have a "concert party" capable of giving the finest programs. "I am surprised to learn," said Mr. George F. Davies, the conductor, the other day, "that you think this unusual, for everywhere in Wales we have our singing clubs. We could not enjoy life as we do if we were deprived of them. The biggest events of the year are when local clubs meet in competition at what we call 'Eisteddfods.' He did not go on to say that under his leadership many choirs have been led to victory in these contests, and he himself has won several medals. It was because of the fame of his present choir that he was tempted into a concert tour of England, and now of America. "The reception I met in America last year with my choir has made me feel that here good music is loved almost as much as in my own land. The programs under my baton not only reflect the most glorious Welsh

SCENE FROM "MRS. MURPHY'S HORSESHOE" IN EDISON'S NEW PERFECTED TALKING PICTURES AT MYERS' THEATRE. TWO NIGHTS, COMMENCING FEB. 12. MATINEE THURSDAY, FEB. 12.

New York, Jan. 27.—The Barnum and Bailey circus has made announcement of the completion of all arrangements for the presentation this spring, in Madison Square Garden and during the road tour which follows, of a new pageant, spectacular, succeeding "Cleopatra," which was the prelude to the circus arena performance last season.

The production will be an "all-American" offering, with English and European bids for scenic effects, properties, costumes, and other varied equipment were cast aside, and the contracts for every part and parcel of the spectacle were entrusted to New York and various other cities of this country.

The production will enlist the services of 1,250 persons and will introduce a ballet and singing chorus of 400 girls. Twenty-seven hundred costumes are being made in this city. Participating will be forty elephants, thirty-seven camels, teams of royal cart-drawing sacred cattle, and calvades of richly accoutred horses.

A unique innovation in sight and sound will be the march around the hippodrome course of 350 persons playing music, the largest body of instrumentalists ever assembled for professional purposes.

Many years ago with Adam Forepaugh Show there was a young man by the name of Patsy Mahar, who from the time he was a boy of seven-teen was the assistant trainer to Adam Forepaugh, Jr., both in winter headquarters and on the road during the summer. Patsy had been with the show many years and would always be seen with young Forepaugh going or coming all during the summer or when not at work in winter quarters would often be seen with him driving in Philadelphia.

It was about the middle of the eighties that we showed in the town where Patsy had spent his boyhood days. His father worked as a section hand there and was a typical old countryman. Patsy had not been at home for some years, but spent his morning at his old home and gave his people tickets for the show and he with young Forepaugh rode at the head of the parade that day and the father felt very proud of him until one of the men of the show told him that Patsy some two years before that changed his name from Mahar to Forepaugh and was known all over the country as Patsy Forepaugh.

This did not please the old gentleman, who thought they were telling him the truth and he looked up and said he would rather Patsy had stayed at home and worked on the section that he was gullivanting around the country with a lot of girls without half clothes enough on and then change his real name for that of Forepaugh.

But when Patsy returned with the parade and took charge of the family he had to explain to the father that the boys were simply trying to have some fun with him and that such was not the case. This was Patsy's first visit to the old home in twelve years and in all the double ring performances, while Adam Forepaugh would be working elephants in one ring, Patsy would be working in the other with trained horses, so that he got well up in the business and stayed with the Forepaughs as long as they owned a show.

It was only some three or four years ago that Patsy was killed in the winter quarters of a small show down east by an enraged elephant. And this is not an uncommon fate for the trainers of wild animals.

A return engagement of the Thos. A. Edison Talking Pictures has been secured by Manager Myers for the Myers Theatre 2 nights commencing matinee Thursday February 12th.

These talking picture productions are under the personal direction of Mr. Edison and the patrons of the house are assured that the program for that date will be entirely different from the one given here previously, and will include a clever monologue by John J. McGraw, Manager of the New York Giants, who are the champions of the National League. In his many years as a big league player and Manager "Muggsy" as he is known to thousands of Base Ball fans has had many unique and interesting experiences, and the way he tells these stories stamps McGraw as an artist of rare ability. Seymour, Dempsey and Seymour who are called "Monarchs of Ragtime Mirth and Melody" are seen in a Cabaret and Ruckus act with lots of rapid-fire comedy, dancing and singing of all the popular songs. Other subjects on the program that will be shown here for the first time are: "The Chimes of Normandy," "The Merchant of Venice," "Sitar Campanari of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company in the Toreador Song from the opera, "Carmen," "The Deaf Mute, a big Military Drama," "The Germania Singing Society," "Her Redemption," a Powerful Religious Drama," "Mrs. Murphy's Horseshoe," a Screaming comedy, and "Caught in the Act," another Roaring Comedy.

AT THE APOLLO
Wally Baker is making a hit as the original boob in The Halloween Hop at the Apollo. He is the whole show himself and he has with him six others making an unusually big attraction. It is a country musical comedy written and staged by Wally Harris.

It would be hard to conceive a better rope spinner than Hazel Moran. For a woman she has no equal. She spins the rope beginning with a little loop and increasing the diameter until it reaches 65 feet, and extends away out over the audience. She is wonderfully clever.

DRAMA CLUB HELD A LIVELY MEETING

Careful Study of David Warfield is Made, and Outlines for Coming Meetings Formulated.

The regular session of the Janesville Dramatic Society was held last evening at the city hall. The attention was drawn to the study of David Warfield, who has closed a most successful engagement in Chicago, playing in "The Auctioneer."

Interesting themes concerning Warfield's life were read by Harold Jones and Isabel McLean. His life and characteristics and the fact that he always honored the role of the Yiddish peddler, proved to be most entertaining to the members.

Miss Leora Westlake opened the program by giving an account of Southern and Barren. Considerable discussion of these men, relative to their earlier life, was dwelt upon.

The social night, which will be more or less an immigration affair, has been postponed until February 20th. This will afford all members ample time to prepare their costumes, which are required.

The Beloit Dramatic club, the local club's nearest competitor, are to stage an excellent production of "The Rivals" on next Monday night. They sent word to Mrs. Day, that it would be possible to make special arrangements for any local club members wishing to attend, and provided they decide by today. Both clubs plan to aid each other in such matters, and several Janesville people may arrange to attend the affair at Beloit, Monday night.

The reading of the act from "The Rivals" was dispensed with, until the members had gained more knowledge of the production. Mrs. Day briefly read the history of the play, which dates back to 1730. It has been played with success almost continuously ever since.

The weather last evening failed to keep away many members, who are enthusiastic over the advancing movement of the season. The cast was selected for the reading of "The Rivals" last evening.

A Queen Anne Treatment—By John Henry Newson

Home of Character--138

This artistic treatment of a conventional plan is favored on account of its character and the life and vim the design possesses. It is a thoroughly livable and pleasing home. The first story is of wide siding, the second story shingles and the gable ends and second story projection cement and half timber work. The porch roof is carried on trellis beams which in turn are supported by massive wood columns. The earth is terraced up close to the porch floor level, which floor is cement, marked off into squares.

SECOND FLOOR (a)

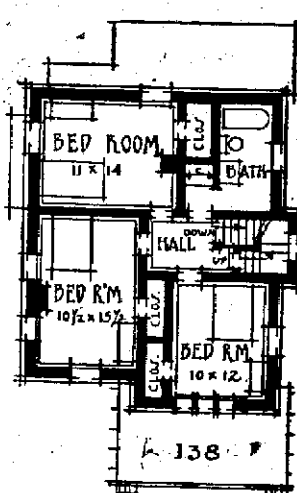

No. 138, size 24x28 feet. Price of plans $20. Specifications $5. Plans with both second floors $25, and specifications $5.

Any Gazette reader intending to build a home in the near future and desiring further information concerning this or any other "Home of Character" should take advantage of the special service Mr. Newson is prepared to render Gazette readers without charge to them. Always give the number of the home and mention the Gazette when making an inquiry, which should be addressed to John Henry Newson, "Homes of Character" Dept., The Gazette.

Three rooms, pantry and reception hall are contained upon the first floor of this plan and the second floor contains four bedrooms and bath. However, at purchaser's option, a second floor may be selected containing three bedrooms considerably larger, as slight changes only, such as omission or transposition of windows, being necessary. The house contains an attic and a basement under the entire building with grade entrance from outside.

Cost $2800. Minimum cost $2600; maximum cost $3500.

The variation in cost will depend on kind and quality of materials used, local building conditions, and the heating and plumbing equipment installed.

PROVINCE OF FUKIEN ADVANCING RAPIDLY UNDER STRICT LAWS

Progress Follows Laws by Chinese Republic to Stop All Opium Traffic—New Spirit of Freedom.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Amoy, China, Jan. 7.—With the development of civilization along Western lines the isolated province of Fukien is rapidly undergoing important changes. It may soon be imagined that a portion has been taken out of New England or some other farming region of the United States and laid down in China for there are increasing evidences that fields once wholly devoted to the opium will be turned over to potatoes and corn.
Progress has put its foot down on the opium traffic. Outside of China there are probably few persons who realize how great a blow this action has dealt at a means of sustenance to a province whose resources were already overtaxed to maintain its crowded population. Opium has always brought a good price in local markets and formed an important source of the farmer's revenue. It is small wonder that campaigns against the drug have met with armed resistance.

Destroys Entire Crop.
Sporadic and reckless destruction of fulgurate crops came last year but not conscious that he government was in earnest until they saw their entire season's work lost. This year a new method is to be tried. Instead of waiting until the plants are grown and then destroying the crop, the government has served notice that all opium plants will be destroyed as soon as they appear in the field. In many instances the summary destruction of the crop last year caused riot and bloodshed, but the notices this year seem to be convincing farmers that the government means business, and the destruction of the young plants already under way has not caused the strife which resulted last year. The new policy is meeting with the approval of the farmers, and once they see that they must give up the poppy they are turning to indigo, potatoes and corn.

People Quiet Down.
Another change a little less tangible, but none the less marked, is the new spirit of freedom. During the revolution Fukienese men and money were not lacking to do the province's part in the overthrow of the hated Manchian government. But, that accomplished, trusting that a clean government would be organized by the "patriots" who are clamoring for control, the people of Fukien settled down to business, and the general desire has been for peace and quiet.

isolated from its neighboring provinces, shut in by high mountain ranges and dependent upon coolies and pack animals for transport to the interior, has driven the Fukienese to the sea. The island of Formosa lying directly opposite the province was colonized by Fukienese seafarers long ago, the success of which enterprise has encouraged the merchants to extend their zone of operations until the southern coast of Asia as far as the Malay peninsula, and most of the southern islands are now dotted with Fukienese colonies.

PLAN BIG FESTIVAL FOR CORONATION OF EMPEROR YOSHIHITO

Commission Making Plans for Ceremonies When Ruler Will Be Crowned at Shikaden in November.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Tokio, Jan. 7.—With the appointment of a coronation commission, plans are now well under way for the "grandest ceremony in the history of Japan" next autumn when the Emperor Yoshihito will be crowned ruler of the Japanese Empire. The date has been tentatively fixed for the early part of November. The festivities which will be under the general supervision of Prince Fushimi as chief of the coronation committee, will continue several days, including the Daishosai or feast after the coronation rites have been observed.

Stage Naval Review.
The scene of the ceremonies will be in the sacred, ancestral halls of the Shikaden, located in the compound of the former Imperial Palace of Kyoto, the ancient capital of the Empire. Coincident with the coronation a big naval review will be held either in Osaka Bay or off Kobe, or in Tokyo Bay, near Yokohama. The city of Kyoto will also open an industrial exhibition to continue for a month.

Remodeling City.
In view of the large number of visitors expected, plans are being considered for improvement of the sanitary conditions of Kyoto, including widening of the streets and reconstruction of hotel accommodations. By building a large hotel to accommodate the foreigners. The police arrangements will also be extended.

A military ball will probably be held in Tokyo in connection with the coronation. The whole Japanese people are looking forward to the November festivities, expecting that they will inaugurate an era of good business.

It is doubtful that any foreign countries will dispatch special envoys to the coronation, since the accommodations for official guests at Kyoto will be limited, but the representative of the powers regularly accredited to Japan will attend.

Contest Held.
The Emperor's popularity has recently been attested by some thirty thousand poems written by his subjects and dedicated to His Majesty. It was one of the features of the New Year celebration, the contest being regarded as a medium through which the Emperor might learn the needs of his people.

This is how the competition was conducted: The poems of the Emperor himself: The poems were sent to the Department of Household Affairs, which first saw to the disinfection of the manuscripts. This precaution having been taken, the verses were packed in bundles and passed on to the Poetry Bureau. Recording officials made copies and had them bound in three hundred volumes, each volume containing a hundred poems. This Selection Committee reviewed this great stack of books, and selected two hundred of the best efforts, and these were again copied for an edition de luxe. To make the final selection most fair, the names of the composers were omitted. After careful perusal of the selected gems the authors of the best verses were invited to read them in the presence of His Majesty on the day of the Imperial Poetry Party.

Complete Dry Dock.
After eight years work the biggest dry-dock in Japan has been completed at the Maizuru naval station on the western coast. The dock will accommodate warships up to 35,000 tons displacement and be an important addition to Japanese naval facilities.

MEXICAN PLUTOCRAT WITH FORTUNE LOST NOW LOOKS FOR JOB

Ravages of Civil War Leave Head of Terrazas Family in Dire Financial Straits.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
El Paso, Tex., Feb. 7.—His immense income tied up by three years of revolutions, Alberto Terrazas of the family whose name in Mexico is a synonym for great wealth, has been compelled to seek a means of livelihood.
This information, as astounding in Mexico and along the Rio Grande border as similar news affecting a Rockefeller or a Vanderbilt would be in the United States, became known here today with his departure for Pasadena, California. He was accompanied by his family, but not the usual retinue of servants.

Buy Small Farm.
Near Pasadena, Terrazas expects to buy or lease a small farm where he can make a modest living. He is one of those who sees no prospect of peace in his native land and until tranquility is restored, the income of the vast Terrazas family fortune estimated at from thirty-five to forty million in American gold, will be tied up. Even in the event of peace it may be lost for the rebels have declared it confiscated.

"I do not mind going to work. It may be a good thing," he said to friends before his departure, and then smiled at his own remarks, for his prodigality with money has been a story chapters of which have been written on two continents in London and Paris, in Mexico, Texas, California, New York and in Chihuahua, the family seat from which the estate has always been administered.

Immense Landed Estate.
The Terrazas fortune was founded by Don Luis Terrazas, now an octogenarian refugee in this city, in land grants from President Juarez and President Porfirio Diaz. These holdings, immense as they are, have been augmented constantly until now as train scheduled are in Mexico it would take a passenger train making the usual stops three days to travel the boundaries of this domain.
It stretches from Juarez 375 miles south to Jimenez and west to Casas Grandes. On it are whole towns, many hamlets, mines, factories, and fertile farms. All this was the property of the senior Terrazas and his three sons Juan, now in the city of Mexico; Luis, Jr., now in Chihuahua as a hostage by the rebels; and Alberto, until the rebels declared the whole estate confiscated.

Beginning with the revolt of Francisco Madero, more than three years ago, the soldiers of northern Mexico on either side of that and the succeeding revolution, have practically lived on the Terrazas fortune. Immense sums were contributed by the family to favorite causes or were extorted by the enemy.

Object of Extortions.
A recent instance was the million dollar ransom demanded for the release of Luis, Jr. He was incarcerated in the municipal palace at Chihuahua, but declined to contribute until he was taken out, beaten with the flat of a sword and a noose placed around his neck and gently tightened. In this predicament he contributed all the ready money at his command—$500,000. American gold—and was then permitted to join his family at the time of his father. He is still there a hostage. The additional ransom now demanded is $250,000, but it is believed that General Villa prefers to hold him as a hostage, to deter other members of the family from financing a new revolt in the north to harass the rebel rear on its march to Torreón.

SOCIAL LIST FULL FOR PRESENTATION IN ENGLISH COURT

British Papers Comment on Queen Mary's Habit of Always Carrying Umbrella—Coates Leaves Millions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Feb. 7.—The gates are closed against any more applications for presentations to their majesties at Buckingham Palace this year. The lord chamberlain has announced that the lists are full, which will doubtless mean a lot of disappointed social debutantes from America in London this season.

Four courts are ordinarily held each year, two early in February just after the opening of parliament and two in late May or early June. Last year, owing to the large number entitled to presentation, a fifth was held, but at such great inconvenience that it is hoped to avoid a repetition this year. To these courts all the official and diplomatic world receive the command to attend, and English ladies, who themselves have been presented, have the privilege of asking for a command for some debutante friend.

Americans Presented.
Formerly these commands could be asked for for a lady not a British subject and in this way many Americans were presented by British friends. During King Edward's reign, however, it was decided that all foreign ladies should be presented through their embassies. As the embassies have only four invitations, outside the diplomatic circle, to which only ladies of the embassies and legations and their relatives are admitted, it is easy to realize the demand that has been made on the embassies for the privilege of being presented. Strictly speaking, the four extra invitations are personal to the ambassador or minister, but in some cases requests for presentations have been made through the authorities of the country which the ambassador represents.

Social Importance.
This question of distributing the four invitations is one of the most

Peculiar Habit.
Rain or shine, Queen Mary must have her umbrella, the habit being so confirmed that she often feels lost without it indoors. This peculiarity has become conspicuous through the recent incident at Norfolk where the queen insisted upon carrying her umbrella through a museum whose rules forbade the taking of walking sticks or umbrellas into the picture galleries.

Museum Incident.
The queen has not been altogether exempt from criticism for refusing to do as other people do in this respect. The Socialist papers seized upon the incident and even in more conservative quarters the queen's conduct is questioned. The Daily Sketch asks why Queen Mary, "who is usually so willing to adapt herself to circumstances," would not temporarily dispense with her umbrella when she visited the Norfolk museum. She was willing, the paper pointed out, to dispense with bouquets and red carpets, with bows and speechmaking, since she tried to keep her identity a secret, but the Bishop of Norwich, who accompanied her, had to disclose her identity in order that she could avoid the rule of parting with her umbrella and obtain the royal prerogative of walking through the museum "fully equipped for the possibility of the blowing off of the roof coinciding with a heavy shower."

No matter what the occasion, unless it be some very formal official ceremony, the queen invariably carries a neatly folded umbrella, despite the fact that she always drives in a covered carriage and whenever she stops anywhere a canopy is provided. Princess Mary has the same umbrella habit as her mother. Queen Victoria likewise was always seen with a parasol or umbrella, but she always had hers open, and it was said that it was lined with chain mail to ward off attempts on her life by bomb throwers.

VATICAN HIGH COURT FAVORS COUNT BONI

French Nobleman Still Needs One Decision From Catholic Court Before Divorce Is Clear.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Rome, Feb. 7.—The success of Count Boni de Castellane with the high law courts of the Vatican has developed into a seven day wonder at Rome. Boni began his suit for divorce from Anna Gould in 1911. Although the first decision went against him he has since been able to ring up three successive decisions in his favor, these being rendered both by the Rota and the Segnatura tribunals. As a result of this success, it is said, the Vatican has no doubt that the Duchess of Tallyrand will have to worry along with only one husband, the Prince de Sagen, instead of two as she is now trying to do.

The first decision of the Rota tribunal in 1911 declared the marriage between Boni and Anna Gould legal. Immediately thereafter, Boni came to Rome, and it is declared made it public in the Vatican circles that having been an intimate friend at Paris of the new President of the Chinese republic, when the latter was a student, it would be impossible for him to sever very favorable connections for the Catholic missionaries in China.

Whatever the actual status of this may have been the fact remains that the new president of the Chinese republic has opened up the country to Catholic missionaries on a basis they never had before and it is equally a fact that since then Boni has been most successful in his suit before the Vatican law courts. Last March, the Rota tribunal, heard the case, and during the past two years. Each member has left a large fortune through which the British exchequer has been enriched by a total of some $6,000,000.

The death of James Coats in March, 1912, left a fortune of nearly $10,000,000 without any provisions for its disposition. Six months later Archibald Coats passed away, leaving a sum of nearly $7,000,000. In January, 1913, James Coats died, leaving nearly $9,000,000.

declared the marriage void. Immediately the Duchess of Tallyrand appealed to the tribunal of the Apostolic Segnatura, declaring she had not been notified of the second hearing.

The appeal left Boni in a delicate position. Ordinarily, at least a year is required for a Vatican tribunal to pass upon a question. Boni was obliged to stand for re-election this spring to the French chamber of deputies from a Catholic district, where the fact that the Vatican had refused him a divorce, or that he had secured it merely by not allowing the Duchess of Tallyrand to defend herself, would have counted heavily against him. It was necessary therefore that Boni get both quick and favorable decisions. And both of these he did.

The Segnatura broke all precedents by hearing the case within a few months, namely last November, and then by deciding it shortly thereafter. It also refused the appeal of the Duchess of Tallyrand. As a consequence, Boni can now go before his French Catholic electors this spring with at least one full decision in his favor. This will probably enable him at least to be re-elected to the chamber of deputies, after which the Rota case which will be the final. The Rota has now rendered two decisions, the first in favor of the Duchess of Tallyrand, and the second in favor of Boni. The third one, which will necessarily have to agree with one of these, will be final, the procedure of the Rota requiring two similar decisions for the final adjudication of a case. Little doubt is entertained at Rome that this third decision will conform the second one in Boni's favor.

Cadillac again awarded the Dewar Trophy

Europe's highest Motor Tribunal pronounces 1914 Cadillac mechanical achievements to be the greatest of the year, demonstrating the advancement of the industry.

In our first announcement of the 1914 Cadillac, and its two-speed direct drive axle, we said: "The Cadillac is about to endow the motor car with a new element of efficiency. A new quality of luxury. A new source of economy."

After several thousand purchasers had received demonstrations of the truth of this prediction, we said in a later announcement: "Motoring as you know it, and motoring as the owner of a 1914 Cadillac knows it, are two distinct and different things."

And we added, that the Cadillac owner was enjoying luxuries to which you must remain a stranger as long as you did not drive a Cadillac.

But we did not dream when we wrote the words, that so distinguished an endorsement as the second award of the Dewar Trophy was close at hand.

You will recall that the first award of the Dewar Trophy to the Cadillac pronounced it the most thoroughly standardized car in the world.

In the test, three Cadillac cars were entirely dismantled, all of the parts thoroughly mixed, and eight-nine parts removed from the heap and substitute parts provided.

The three cars were then re-built into perfect running condition from the haphazard heap—wrenches and screw drivers being the only tools necessary.

Standardization was defined to mean in this test—as it always has meant—that every Cadillac part was exactly like every other part of its kind.

It did not mean nearly like it or almost like it, but absolutely like it, down to the one-thousandth part of an inch, where that degree of accuracy was essential.

In other words, that there was complete interchangeability, perfect alignment of parts and units, perfect harmony in their operating relations with each other, and a total absence of ill-fitting joints and bearings.

The Cadillac is the only car which has ever passed this tremendously significant test of what constitutes standardization; and the award to the Cadillac was the only one ever made upon such a test.

And that fact lends special significance to this second award of the same trophy to the same car, but from a new angle of analysis.

It is one thing to feel sure that your manufacturing principles are sound and scientific.

It is another, and a more pleasant thing, to have that fact almost universally appreciated by your own countrymen.

But it is gratifying in the extreme to have the approval of your own nation reinforced by an international verdict.

You, as a Cadillac owner—present or prospective—can take just pride in this second award of the Dewar trophy.

It is more than a Cadillac achievement—it is a tribute from high sources to American skill and to American engineering initiative.

The Royal Automobile Club, which conducts the contests for the Dewar Trophy, is the most conservative tribunal of its type in the world.

The Dewar Trophy is the motor classic.

It is awarded for the most distinguished achievement of the year, demonstrating the advancement of the industry.

It takes into account manufacturing principles as well as performance.

Sir Thomas Dewar, when he instituted the Trophy, had it in mind to seek out, each year, the car of super-excellence.

So the awards are as disinterested, as scientific, as the award of the Nobel Prize in a totally different field of endeavor.

We may all of us feel justly reinforced, therefore, in our good opinion of this splendid American car, the Cadillac.

We may feel that its virtues have not been overstated.

We may all feel that these announcements have not overdrawn the advantages of the latest Cadillac development, the Cadillac two speed direct drive axle.

It was not merely the point-by-point performances of the car over give-and-take roads for a thousand miles.

It was not merely the certainty and the endurance of the electrical devices in self cranking, lighting and ignition.

It was not merely the remarkable record of 17-17 miles per gallon of gasoline notwithstanding repeated stops and starts in testing the electric cranking device.

It was not alone the astonishing record of more than 1,000 miles per gallon of lubricating oil.

It was not only that the two-speed direct drive axle was a material factor in making possible these results; and that it gave to the word "luxury" a new meaning as applied to motoring.

It was not only the perfect record in the shifting of the rear axle gears from high to low, and vice versa 520 times, by means of the electric shifting device.

No, the Dewar Trophy was awarded to the Cadillac for the second time—and the Cadillac is the only American car which has ever received it and the only car in the world to which it has ever been awarded twice—because it does what it is, and because it does what it does.

Because the Cadillac proved itself to be the car of all around super-excellence as a complete entity.

Because it proved its dominant characteristics to be those which make most for all around constancy and serviceability.

Because, as we have said, no other car rides or drives like the Cadillac.

Because, in fact, it is the Standard of the World.

HARMS AND CURE OF SMALL GRAIN SMUTS

BEING ONE OF A SERIES OF PAPERS WRITTEN FOR ROCK COUNTY FARMERS.

VARIETIES OF SMUTS

Loose and Closed Smut of Wheat and Loose and Closed Smut of Oats.

A good opportunity is here afforded the farmers of Rock county to prevent smut growing on their small grains. Noyes Taessier, who has been lecturing at the state university for some time, will write a series of papers on small grains for the benefit of those who care to profit by them.

Smut is divided into three groups so far as the treatment is concerned. Stinking smut (hant) in wheat can be detected by the appearance of light colored heads, shorter straw and the large smut balls. There is but little danger of infection from the stinking smut. The spores are in the seed which get into the soil. It is spread widely by the threshing machine, by grain shipments, etc. The spores lodge on the outside of the berries and in this way spread everywhere. Clean out the grain before treating by fanning or putting in water. Smut balls will float and can be skimmed off.

(a) Barley Smut Loose—Appears as soon as the heads are formed. Reaches its maximum about July 1. Smut mass breaks up and leaves the bare stem. Control with hot water, not formalin.

(b) Barley Smut Covered—Appears two weeks later than loose smut. Maximum about middle of July. Awns seldom smutted. Smut masses only slightly broken up and may remain on the spike until harvest. Black in color and has a silver grey skin around it. Spores lodge on outside of kernels and germinate with the seed the next spring. Control with formalin.

Smuts of Grain Crops. These smuts appear more commonly in the southern half of Wisconsin. Smuts of grain are diseases of parasitic origin and are familiar to every farmer. They cause blackish, smutty masses of powder where the grain of wheat, oats or barley ought to be, or on the leaves, ears or other parts of corn. This black mass may be in the form of a compact ball as in stinking smut of wheat, or it may be a loose, powdery mass as in loose smut of wheat or oat smut.

In wheat the stinking smut mass has an odor like that of dead fish, which is easily detected in the field or in the harvested grain. The smut is a fungus plant or parasite, composed of tiny threads which live inside of and steal their nutrients from the grain plant. No seeds are formed but reproduction is brought about by means of spores (or smut dust). These spores are so small that if 5,000 of them were placed side by side they would form a string about one inch long. After the spore enters the grain or that of a plant it produces a tiny thread which grows very fast, finally destroying the plant and grain forming spores which are carried to other plants by the wind.

Life of the Smut. It must be noticed that all smuts are not alike and each one has its own way of living. Corn smut does not cause smut on wheat, oats or barley, oats smut will not cause smut on wheat, barley or corn. Moreover, each smut has its own peculiar habits. Therefore we must learn the life story of each before we can find an effective treatment for the disease.

The damage by smut in our grain crops is often underestimated because so many smutted heads are short and inconspicuous and many lose all their spores and become a dark bare stem.

Smuts on wheat and barley range from 2 to 10 per cent, while in oats as high as 25 per cent is not uncommon.

Smuts are divided into two classes according to mode of infection of seed—loose and closed smut.

(1) The loose smut of wheat and barley, which distribute their spores at the flowering stage of the plant. These spores find their way between the glumes and come in contact with the young ovary. Here they germinate and grow down the embryo at the growing point. Here the smut develops into tiny threadlike growths and continues until the grain is ripe, when the growth is arrested but not killed. When the grain germinates the next spring the mycelium or hair-like structure starts again, keeping pace with the new growth of the plant until the head is formed. It then invades all the young spikelets or young grain heads, robs them of their nourishment and replaces them with smut spores. The spores are in the form of fine black powder and are ready for distribution again by the time the rest of the field is in the blossom stage.

Closed Smut. To this class of smut belong the covered smut of barley, stinking smut of wheat, and oat smut (loose). In barley and wheat these smutted heads appear shortly after bloom. The spores fall upon the grains but do not form a mass upon the outside. Growth of the spore does not begin until the next spring when the grain is planted. Then the young spore sends its colorless threads (mycelium) into the softened grain and travels up inside of the plant, destroying the embryo shortly after the kernels have been formed.

Loose Smut of Wheat. This smut begins to appear as soon as the plants are headed out. The whole head is smutted, glumes and grain but the grain survives after the smut has blown away leaving the bare rachis rather inconspicuous. Infection of the flower depends somewhat upon weather conditions and the reasons for this are not fully understood. Infection takes place in the field, so there is no danger of being spread by the threshing machine.

The best preventative is to keep the fields free from the smut, when buying seed to know where it comes from. The best treatment for this smut is the hot water treatment. There seems to be but little difference in the resistance of the different varieties of wheat, but Durham wheats seem to have very little smut. Beard-seed wheats seem to have more than bluestem and Pile.

Treatment. 1. Hot water requires more care than formalin, but this method is inexpensive. Temperature of water should not be below 120 degrees F., nor 145 degrees F. for wheat and oats. For barley 125 to 129 degrees F. for ten minutes.

2. Soak by immersion ten to fifteen minutes.

3. Warm the grain in water before treating.

4. Work the grain up and down while treating, taking care out of the water six or eight times.

5. Have the volume of water eight or ten times greater than that of the seed.

6. Do not fill the basket or sack with seed.

Formalin. For Oats—One pint 40 per cent formaldehyde to 36 gallons water. Place grain in gunny sacks and submerge for at least ten minutes. After soaking, raise the bags to top of the tank and allow the solution to drain back into the receptacle. One pint will treat thirty bushels of oats. Spread out on a clean floor, shovel very four or five hours and grain is ready for sowing in one or two days.

For Barley—Use only 20 gallons instead of 30 gallons to one pint of formalin.

Oats Smut. This smut is one of the loose or covered variety, but the coverage is not so great. It is found so rarely that it is of no great importance.

Loose Smut. This smut appears as soon as the oats begin to head. Usually nothing appears inside the husk but smut. Chat as well as the kernel is smutted and breaks easily, then blows away, leaving nothing but the bare tips of the straws. Occasionally some of the kernels escape smut.

Smut spores lodge on the grain and germinate with the growing grain. As most of the smut is blown off before threshing, there is not so much danger from spreading the disease in threshing and handling the grain as in the case of covered smut. Control with formalin.

Some varieties of oats appear to possess the power of resistance more than others, but at present there has not been anything definite determined along this line.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Feb. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. John Beck returned from Janesville on Friday morning where they had been visiting with A. H. Smiley, a brother of Mrs. Beck's, who is seriously ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Smiley of Janesville.

A considerable amount of tobacco was received at the local warehouses on Friday in spite of the fact that the weather was stormy.

Sam Osgard was in Janesville on Thursday evening to visit Mrs. Osgard, who is at Mercy hospital. He reports that she is doing nicely.

A company of section men from Brodhead camped down Thursday and assisted Mr. Schultz in unloading several cars of cinders east of the village.

Several of our citizens who have growing boys, are interesting themselves in having the "curfew law" revived. This law, a few years ago, was not only very popular, but very effective, and there are those in the village who are "old-fashioned" enough to think that the best place for a boy from ten to sixteen years of age, is at home after nine o'clock at night.

Officer Jones received a call over the telephone on Friday morning informing him that man supposed to be insane was wandering about and frightening the people of the neighborhood, about a mile and a half east of the village. He immediately went to the place but the man had gone before his arrival. Later in the day word was received that the same party was on the Madison road near the fair school house, but was successful in evading the officers.

Don't let your house remain vacant for a month, when you can find a tenant for what a few days' rent would bring.

The International Sunday School Lesson.

Motto for this Week: "It is astonishing how a Bible sentence clinches and sums up an argument."—Matthew Arnold.

First Quarter. Lesson VI. Luke 11:14-25, 33-36. Feb. 8, 1914. DARKNESS AND LIGHT. (THE STORY.)

Two-thirds of Jesus' public ministry were passed. His unceasing wisdom, his patient and powerful miracles, his ideal perfect character, were on the point of capturing the unsophisticated heart of Galilee; but his enslavement to the great ecclesiastical establishment was betrayed in the very tentative and tame character of the miracle which he performed.

"Can this possibly be David's Son?" The rising of popular faith must be "tipped in the bud." Love of power overrode love of truth. The hierarchy must be preserved at all hazards.

And so a dark, gloomy, Jewish commission comes down from Jerusalem, to stem the tide of popular favor, and if possible, convert it into an angry torrent that shall destroy the obnoxious teacher.

In this "in-made" Phariseeism was but a manifestation from the extreme expedient it used. It admits the miracle. But it denies its heavenly source.

On the contrary, it affirms the nexus with the underworld. It plays upon the superstitious fears of untutored minds. It goes to the utmost bound of affirming Jesus to be the devil incarnate.

The rupture between Jesus and Judaism is now complete. Obnoxious to the wisdom, purity and love manifested in his career, Judaism smashes upon him malignantly. It disdainfully calls his "this fellow" and affirming that he is possessed by the "God of Filth."

Jesus, on his part, in this trying ordeal, is calm, dignified, gentle, while with his logic he shivers the Pharisaical hypothesis. With merciful courtesy he calls his traducers to him, and with lucid parables shows them, and the people as well, how utterly untenable their position is.

Union is the source of strength and perpetuity, either in the narrow limits of domestic, or in the wider boundaries of national life. Division is destruction. In the kingdom of darkness this principle is all too well understood. Hell is revealed in serried ranks. Kingdom or house of Satan, divided, can not stand, but hath an end.

Jesus points with confidence to his whole career—the miracles, the word and deed—the sum of his influence and his character, to show his deadly antagonism to Satan. How, then, can he be Satan's self? The blasphemous theory dies upon the very lips that utter it.

This poor, blind, and dumb possessed man, whose healing had produced such a sensation, had dared them to frame their profane argument, was just like a castle in which a robber knight had ensconced himself, and an anti-Satanic force which storms the castle, binds the devil, intruder, and casts him out beyond hope of return. And that is what Jesus had undertaken to prove.

TEACHER'S LANTERN. Turn the tide—it was inevitable! Immense multitudes; an over-augmented influence and unconcealed admiration, was flood-tide at the close of the second year of his public ministry; but then the ebb set in with that speed of retrogression which made the crucifixion possible in a twinkling.

Loaves and fishes—curiosity, and instability—the latter were the characteristics, the former were the ends sought by the multitudes that followed and pressed upon the Master. When the loves were exhausted, and curiosity satisfied, the weathercock of popular feeling was ready to whirl to any new breath that blew. And thus Jesus grew unpopular.

That one particular in which the Kingdom of Heaven on earth might well imitate the kingdom of darkness. It is because we are divided that we make such slow progress and are so often conquered. The unrepentable sin, on the Godward side all sins of all degrees of turpitude are pardonable. This is explicitly affirmed in very connection with the description of the unpardonable sin. It is, then, only a subjective condition of the sinner, which lets and hinders God from forgiving him.

ANALYSIS AND KEY. Jesus' increasing popularity. His power waxing. Danger to ecclesiastical establishment. Ecclesiastics to the rescue. Their sorry plight. Miracle must needs be acknowledged.

Accounted for by affirming Jesus' affiliation with the devil. Inevitable of Jesus' answer. Union is strength; division is weakness.

One can not be both anti and pro-Satanic. Jesus proves himself anti-Satanic. Ecclesiastism defeated. The Young People's Devotional Service, Feb. 8, 1914, Psalm 27: 26-32.

"CASCARETS" RELIEVE SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Move acids, gases and clogged-up waste from Stomach, Liver, Bowels—Cure Indigestion.

Get a 10-cent box now.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets, they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning.

A 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, lively and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

OTHERS AND YOURSELF.

"Be not angry that you cannot make others what you wish them to be, since you cannot make yourself what you wish to be."

Words of wisdom from Thomas a Kempis, the churchman of the fifteenth century, who wrote a "little book" that is still read and is accounted among the world's great storehouses of wisdom.

How soothingly his words fall on the ear of the person impatient with inferiority and wrongdoing!

Let us try to analyze them.

First, "Be not angry that you cannot make others what you wish them to be."

Some of us have wished that we could remodel the world nearer to the heart's desire, as Omar Khayyam says, and many of us have desired to work a change in those about us.

When we are embittered by their opposition or infuriated by their stupidity, what would we not give to be able to make them what we wish them to be? How easy it would be if we could only make them see things as we view them or convince them that we are in the right and they are in the wrong!

So certain are we of ourselves!

There is the self confidence that is good, for it lends strength to the arm and keenness to the brain in doing the work that must be done. Such is the self reliance that is founded on the strong rock of consciousness of right. No storms of opposition should be permitted to shake it.

But there is also the self confidence which is mistaken and which is merely stubbornness in the wrong. That is the spirit which makes us wish to make others what we want them to be, heedless of our own shortcomings.

For is it not true that we cannot make ourselves what we wish to be? We know well what we should like to be, but we permit our limitations to bar the way. We know, for example, that the attainment of a certain end requires the exercise of industry and unremitting effort, but we go in our old, slothful, unavailing way—until the golden time of opportunity is no more.

We see the light of righteousness and willfully blind ourselves to it. That is the weakness of our human nature.

We should not be angry, therefore, because we cannot remodel the world and its conditions and our neighbors to suit ourselves, since in our hearts we know that it is hard to bring ourselves to make progress toward the goal of perfection which lies before us all.

MISCELLANEOUS PRINTED MATTER BY PARCEL POST

Postmaster C. L. Valentine has received notice from Washington that all miscellaneous printing matter exceeding four pounds in weight go under parcels post rules. In the past such matter has been sent at the rate of one cent for two ounces and the weight limit has been four pounds. In the future the old rate will apply to the four pound limit when the parcels post rates will go into effect.

One Cause of Family Trouble. Good Dr. Josiah Oldfield has discovered that "although marriages are made in heaven, they are too often marred at the breakfast table." But we find that they are still often marred at the dinner table. This is because of small platters. Statistics teach us that 9.4 husbands out of every ten carve on platters so ruinous to tablecloths, shirt fronts, coiffures, wall paper, ceilings and the moral nature of man, woman and child that the only logical consequence is dispute.

Had Queer Appetite. A human ostrich, a little girl of ten, was operated on recently at Bocholt, Germany. The surgeons discovered two pocket knives, a bunch of keys and two brass plates.

Virtue and Greatness. There was never yet a truly great man that was not at the same time truly virtuous.—Benjamin Franklin.

That Made Burke's a Busy Store

It is undoubtedly true that Outdoor Gas Arc Lamps stimulate business. There is no better, or more attractive lamp for the front of a place of business. Our Outdoor Gas Arc Lamps give a white light of 500 candlepower which makes the windows and front of the store stand out in mockery of unlighted neighbors. In addition to attracting attention, Outdoor Gas Arc Lamps help to light the show windows.

The maintenance and consumption cost is lower than that of any other lamp.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

SELLING ONE'S BIRTHRIGHT.

THE Lady across the way and I once planned to take a day off, go for a long walk and have some friends. The day appointed was a perfect day, the kind that makes the wanderlust well up in the most sedate and unromantic of hearts. Whenever I am particularly happy I often find myself humming the Torsador song, which, to my mind, is the most perfect musical expression of joyousness and the holiday spirit. And this day as I went about my morning duties I began to hum it for sheer delight that the day and the plans should have been so perfectly harmonious.

Then the telephone rang. Do you remember how the Painted Lady refused to open letters because one can always be happy imagining they bring good news if one does not open them? That's the way I feel about the telephone sometimes. However, answered it, and, sure enough, the Lady across the way was calling up to cancel our plans. "I'm afraid I'll have to give up going to Gretchen's," she said. "I don't feel a bit well this morning. I ate some onions last night and they always upset me. I'm dreadfully disappointed, for it's a perfect day, but I really feel miserable, so I don't think I'd better attempt it."

Just think for a few moments, for a few moments' titillation of the palate, for the lack of a little self-control, she had sacrificed a whole day of wholesome, recreating pleasure.

And yet how often we—you and I and the other fellow—do just this sort of thing.

I know that I must have a certain amount of sleep in order to be happy and efficient, and yet just once in so often I let the desire for a story or a get the bit of work done, to prolong the conversation, or just to dilly-dally about, keep me up until long past my bed hour. And the next day I am useless to myself and to everybody else. All for the lack of a little self-control!

Another member of my family knows that she needs a certain amount of outdoor exercise every day to keep her nerves and digestion in good shape. Occasionally she finds this exercise too much bother and doesn't go out at all. The next day she is nervous, melancholy and miserable. A day spoiled, all for want of a little self-control!

Ellen H. Richards, the great philosopher and scientist in her book on food and its relation to the mind, body and soul, crystallized her beliefs on this subject into a creed. Two of its articles are:

"I believe that man is the noblest work of God only when he uses his body as a means of expression of high ideals and not as a means of gratifying momentary desire."

"I believe that the rule that ruleth his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city." In the second paragraph she says that one who has a fair chance of attaining one's ideal, is man's prerogative and differentiates him from the beasts of the field."

It seems to me that is a splendid creed. Only I would make the word "appetite" in the second paragraph cover all the momentary desires that are in conflict with one's larger efforts and that one should continually yield to which is indeed to sell one's birthright for a mess of pottage.

A VARIETY OF CAKES.

In making cake, have all the materials at hand before beginning the operation, then at the last moment there will be nothing vitally important missing. When eggs are high we will wish to choose cakes with few of them, and there are many. With butter always high, we like to use as little as possible, and substitute a cheaper fat, when the flavor may be disguised by spices.

Egless Devil's Food.—One cupful of sugar, a quarter of a cup of shortening, one-half cup of sour milk, two cupfuls of flour, two squares of chocolate dissolved in a half cup of boiling water, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of soda and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Bake in loaf or layers.

Coffee Cake.—Mix well together three tablespoonfuls of sugar with two of melted butter, and one egg. Sift two tablespoonfuls of baking powder with two cups of flour; add salt and the grated rind of a lemon. Mix together, adding the milk gradually, alternating with the flour. When ready for the oven, sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar.

Snow Cake.—Cream a half cup of butter, add a cup of sugar, a half cup of milk, alternately with two cups of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add flavoring and fold in the whites of four eggs beaten stiff.

Pork Cake.—To one cup of fat chopped salt pork add a cup of boiling water, one cupful of raisins, one cup of brown sugar, one-half cup of molasses, one teaspoonful of soda and different spices to taste. A cup of well softened dried apples is an improvement.

Women Worth While

MRS. JOHN W. KERN.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.) FROM an old Virginia farm, Mrs. John W. Kern, wife of Senator Kern of Indiana, has garnered treasures that outstrip the wealth of all the Indies. These treasures are enthusiasm, superabundant health, and joy in the simple and wholesome things of life.

Cradled between the Allegheny and the Blue Ridge mountains, near Roanoke, Virginia, is one of the loveliest of small valleys. It goes by the name of Carvin's Cove. Here the Kerns own an estate of fifteen hundred acres, inherited by Senator Kern from his father. Of this land two hundred and fifty acres are farmed by Mrs. Kern. With her farming is not a bad but a business. In this, she intends to make of the place a first-class cattle farm, conducted by the most efficient and up-to-date methods. She raises chickens and hogs; and last summer she realized a goodly sum on the sale of vegetables from her garden.

That portion of the Kern estate which is not under cultivation has been left in all its natural beauty for the enjoyment of its owners and their friends.

"It is not only the accessibility of our Virginia place to Washington," says Mrs. Kern, "that appeals to us. It is for its health giving qualities, and for what these mean to our two growing boys that we value it most."

When we decided, soon after my husband took his seat in the Senate, to have a home there, I entered upon one of the most thrilling and delightful adventures that may befall a woman—that of housebuilding. I was my own architect and contractor, which added to the fun of it. My carpenters were sturdy mountaineers with an instinctive sense of the beauty of line and proportion that go to make the ideal house. Also we quarried our own stone from our own mountain side. The result was a house that was not expensive, but perfectly suited to the needs of country life.

Its living room, forty feet long and twenty feet wide, is dominated by a great stone fireplace. Its windows are numerous and spacious, and every bedroom opens on a sleeping porch. The house is built on a beautiful bluff, and commands beautiful views. The place is appropriately named "Kerncliff."

Mrs. Kern is proud of her husband, and interested in his career, but neither society nor politics holds illusions for her. The real things in life are love of family, and courage to suffer as all must suffer who live deeply, friendship, and an abiding joy in the things of nature, of which are tempered by a rare sense of humor.

Do you ever think that we leave too much undone in the raising of our children? That we are a trifle too anxious to keep house so well that the very best part of the home work is overlooked? You see, in the natural order of events, we will always have a house to keep and care for. With the children's different, for ere we realize it our babies are men and women grown. Men and women that whether or not they be prepared, must step in line and face the competition that is so often utterly keen.

The dainty clothes they wore in childhood will not aid them, then! They can't just take the body that, to a great extent, your feeding has made for them and the character that your training and example have moulded for them and face the battle alone. You can't stand back of them then; much as you would like to.

One need not necessarily have the "golden touch" of raise the kind of children that will be a credit to their Creator, their country and to the home and parents that raised and sheltered them.

And so, irrespective of your income, what kind of a parent are you?

Fashion Reigns

The fashion of the present day demands that the complexion of the well-groomed woman shall be clear and of snowy whiteness. To possess this necessary requirement invest at once in a bottle of

and enjoy the charms that are so admired in a fashionable woman. Gouraud's Oriental Cream is a liquid powder, far surpassing the dry powders that have to be applied so frequently to gain the desired effect. It whitens, softens and clears the skin. It is absolutely free from grease and consequently does not encourage the growth of hair. Gouraud's Oriental Cream has been in actual use for nearly three-quarters of a century. This is the surest guarantee of its superiority. If you will use it regularly you will know why it has been popular for so many years. At Druggists and Department Stores. F. D. T. Decrease in Agricultural Growth and Rural Unemployment: The State's Attempt

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Feb. 7.—The week has developed some very curious illustrations of the facility with which the Wisconsin doctors get their wives crossed in evolving statistics for the farmer. It will be recalled that at the meeting of the Society of Equity in La Crosse in December Governor McGovern painted a dark picture of the Wisconsin farmer. It is the farmers for whom he is anxious to organize a plan of co-operative marketing to lift them out of the slough in which he now finds them. The governor showed that in the decade 1910 to 1920 population in nineteen rural counties and that the decrease in rural population was 75,000, while manufacturing cities gained 200,000. These figures are substantially from the census and the governor misrepresents the figures by showing that leaving out the growth of cities within them, rural population fell off in about ten more counties. The governor, too, made the mistake of saying that this was the result of modernization of the farm in the cities. This is inaccurate, as a more careful analysis would show him. It is agricultural loss to the state that has been more than offset by the influx of manufacturing population which has been the cause of the increase along the eastern lake shore counties and in Superior. Wisconsin's agricultural exhibit was only saved from a much worse showing by the settlement and development of the north and in the north-central part of the state.

This brings me to some other statistics that are most confusing. The governor said that "the average farmer" has a dollar a day to show for his labor after all upkeep, maintenance and taxes are paid. The state's Secretary Campbell of the Wisconsin Advancement association has figured that the "average" Wisconsin farmer gets $1,114 a year for his labor, aside from "rent, fuel and a large portion of his family's expenses." He takes from this last sum the surplus of $365, which the governor allows, and this "average farmer" would have $749 to complete his living expenses, or about 80 per cent more than the average dairy laborer would be getting.

Prof. E. H. Hibbard of the agricultural economics department of the University of Wisconsin, and says that the "average farmer" spends $240 for "store credit," so we get this "average farmer's" trimmings down to $509. Then on Monday last another university man, Prof. Humphrey, told the pupils in the short course in dairying that "systematic and efficient management of the dairy business would add at least $50,000,000 to the income of the state, and that by increasing in this way, Prof. Moore of the university told us of Wisconsin's pre-eminence in dairying, and that our dairy products are worth $90,000,000 a year, so Prof. Humphrey would make the usual $400,000,000 with his simple recipe. But that would seem to be a useless undertaking, for Prof. Humphrey was also quoted as saying that our farmers "are operating at a loss of about 60 per cent in the dairy business." The thing figures out there for the state fair sales of Wisconsin to be $80,000,000 of business, he would lose $84,000,000 on $140,000,000. But my mind reels with such figuring. Against such poppycock the United States census of 1910, Vol. VII, page 110, shows the sales of Wisconsin in 1909, of milk, cream, butter, fat, butter and cheese were $5,238,399. In 1909 the Wisconsin dairy and food commissioner gave $79,000,000 as the aggregate annual revenue from dairying.

Quite a different picture was painted by the census, a difference of $4,641,601. Taking a tidy sum, and Prof. Moore's $90,000,000 offers similar leeway to a vivid imagination. The making of statistics of this sort is an easy routine and it is most amusing people to know of one of our state's men of considerable notoriety if not an enviable reputation.

Tax Information. It is worth while for those who are writing to really inform the people of Wisconsin as to the question of taxation. That Prof. Adams is a taxpayer, that Prof. Adams is the governor and other things that the issue to mere details. That is the evident purpose and it will lead to misunderstanding. Prof. Adams is a taxpayer, that is the same fact. The cost of commission service makes but a small percentage of the aggregate of state expenses, or of the total cost of state government. The only point in this matter which could give rise to misunderstanding is that the figures are not exceptional. It costs less than $4,000,000 to run the state in 1900. For this year Prof. Adams says the "budget appropriations" are $16,722,000. This is an increase of 100 per cent in cost of government against a gain in population and wealth that falls back and is below the average of the country as a whole.

An assessor of incomes whom I met this week cheered me with this information: "You pay more taxes this year than you did last and you will pay more next year than you do this year. In other words, for my family, which is in the middle of the nearly 10 per cent of my own and my family's income this year in taxes, and then two income taxes on the money I have to earn to help pay the other taxes, I don't believe I am so very tax-exempted either. I haven't made any particular difference to me whether I am paying 10 per cent or 40 for commissions. I am out of pocket more than any proper system can justify and no such money will I have to pay back any taxpayer. It will be spent. And my friend the assessor kindly tells me I will pay more next year. How long can I earn enough to pay such taxation? Does 'ability to pay' enter into the reckoning? I get no allowance for unproductive property, such as in Germany, many, or anywhere else under the German income taxes are scientifically imposed. This is not intended to be a personal wail though it may suggest my very direct interest in this subject. I can stand it. And while my neighbors can, and they, generally speaking, only cuss mildly, and pay small attention to the broad question of the swift run we are making toward Socialism. Governor McCarty cannot fight me with a Socialist. He is a weak, vacillating, Berger as a less dangerous enemy of free institutions than such men as he and Dr. McCarthy. Victor is the more frank. He wants class warfare and avowed himself. Doctor McCarthy the 'Moderate' is the 'Moderate' in the more oracular statement: "When it comes to the attainment of any reasonable legislation for the

He means to get there first, ahead of Victor, and Wisconsin is following his program.

An Alarming Situation.—This is a strong statement. It is intended to be. It is not intended to be sensational. It is a serious matter and it is high time the people take it seriously. The tendencies of Wisconsin's present government are to make the element that I represent—the men who work for a living and make something more than day wages. Such men are having the door of opportunity closed and in their faces is this state. Many of the wealthy go to California or to Florida and play golf at tax paying season and leave their clerks or stenographers to represent them in public affairs. Any more case of large business with small actual wealth are bowed by the blackguards and demagogues until they don't dare open their heads, and the laboring classes are bent from the waist to the ground. They will find no support in the legislature. The element discontent is about time that Wisconsin began to realize that the way to have good citizens is for every man to carry his own burden and to begin his own reform in his own neighborhood.

The financiers disagree as to the future largely because they cannot see any other than either route to a millstone. The eastern bankers seem to think that a season of contraction will precede the operation of the new currency law. The president of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, James H. Upham, at a dinner here on Tuesday night told of his visit to the Wisconsin Advancement association that the new system would be a great advantage and would add materially to the working funds in the hands of the local banks. He predicted easier money and lower rates. Lower rates are already being realized.

At the same time the announcement was made that Russell Sage Underwood is to be Cooke's assistant. This means that two Wisconsin acquaintances are in Erie management. Mr. Cooke is a former Milwaukee having been connected with the Wisconsin Central.

president's youngest son, was born in Milwaukee. He is "making good." The striking student waiters at the University commons, Madison, right or wrong, are following the spirit of the instruction at that institution. They call for an investigation and charge bad management at the eating houses. A thorough investigation of university management would be very instructive. A present citizen of Wisconsin can find out much about how its money is spent or where.

Pessimistic Rufus.
 "What means dis heah pit'ical 'conomy?" asked Rastus, who was endeavoring to wade through a paper. "Frum de way de politicians down ouah wabd is actin'," answered Rufus, "I s'pects it means de mos' votes foh de leust money."

City Club Houses.
The City of Breslau maintains club houses for young people for sociability, amusement and other recreation, with playgrounds, reading rooms, assembly halls, shower baths, and so on.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

HERCULES lived in Greece before the calendar was invented and held all the records of the test records of the world.

Hercules was born a poor boy, but his father was Jupiter, who ran the universe at that time according to mythology, and this gave the youngster considerable pull. He was extremely strong, and grew up in a large, and white stupa, in his cradle strangled a couple of large snakes which had been sent to destroy him by a jealous goddess.

Hercules grew rapidly, and before he could walk he was the strongest young man in the neighborhood. He now became extremely handy, being a willing worker and got several good jobs extorting lions before he could talk plainly. Later he was sent to school, but never forgot the fact that when out of temper he would carelessly break the back of his instructor and throw him a quarter of a mile away, he was not pop-

When Hercules became a young man he was very beautiful and was greatly admired. He had little time for society, however, as he was in those days, was full of strange and terrible creatures corresponding to the Octopus, the Tammany Tiger, standpaters, the man-eating race of the Catillon dramatists and the uninvestigated city of New York. Hercules was sent out to overcome all these, and labored for many years amid great peril, wrestling with wild bulls, chopping nine-headed serpents, carrying 500 horses, even beat twisting their necks, renovating the Greek stables, corresponding to the New York city government and cleaning up the world generally. When he had finished early Greece he was sent to a place of residence, which so irritated the gang that they sent him a poisoned garment corresponding to a framed up scandal of these days, and he expired in great Hercules became a god after he died and loafed around Olympus in great comfort and luxury. He served his rest after performing his twelve great tasks, but it is lucky for Herk, that he isn't hanging around today looking for work. Someone might challenge him to drive the elephant and the moose in double harness and the land would be strewn with fragments of an ex-strong man, before he had been on the job ten minutes.

A Winter Cough
A stubborn, annoying, depressing cough hangs on, racks the body, weakens the lungs and often leads to serious results. The first dose of Dr. King's New Discovery gives relief. Henry D. Sanders, of Candlish, Vt., after having pneumonia. He writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery ought to be in every family; it is certainly the best of all medicines for coughs, colds or lung trouble." Good for children's coughs. Money back if not satisfied. Price 50c and $1.00. At all Druggists. People's Drug Co.

IN BUYING your new car this year it will pay you to stop and consider and weigh well the many points that are vital in the matter. First of all the rating of the company building the car and then the car itself. You will no doubt make your selection from among a few cars around the price you intend to pay. Compare them point for point (in the table printed above) in material and construction, the motor, horsepower, wheel base, body room, bearings, and by comparing the Overland with any car that sells around a $1000 you will find it has the best value of any of them by at least $200 worth. And with the Cole and Case cars you will find them as good as money will buy at their respective prices.

Bradstreet rates the Overland Company at $1,000,000; Credit A1
Bradstreet rates the J. I. Case Company at $2,000,000; Credit A1
Bradstreet rates the Cole Motor Company at $500,000; Credit A1

You cannot make a mistake on any of these above mentioned three cars
